HILLSIDE BREWERY NEAR DOOM

Frankfort Brewery Case Goes Before Judge Cliff For Final Disposition

The underground hillside brewery discovered north of Frankfort last Fall by Federal Prohibition agents, is fast nearing its final doom.

The Frankfort Brewery which has been closed since last summer, may be disposed of by next month by the Federal authorities according to a notice issued out of the United States Marshall's office.

On Feb. 6th a motion was issued by the District Court against the property in question, which asks for the forfeiture, condemnation, sale and destruction of the articles and things contained in the brewery.

Notice is given that the motion is returnable on the first Monday in March in the Court of Judge Adam C. Cliff in the Federal Building, Chicago and that any person or persons claiming said articles are requested to appear in court and show why the court should not pronounce against the same.

Orland Installs New Fire Siren

Orland has a new fire siren whistle. For sometime an agitation has been on for a means of fire alarm that would be superior to the old bell in use. The Volunteer Fire Department got busy and raised a fund thru dances and bunco parties and purchased a real modern fire siren which has been installed to avoid the village flume.

This new alarm can be heard for miles and will be an excellent means of giving a quick alarm in case of fire. This is another forward step in the march of progress that Orland is enjoying now.

Elmer Newton entertained the members of the Adult Bible class of the Orland M. E. church at his home Friday evening at a Valentine Social. Games and stunts in keeping with the season were played and enjoyed. Bountiful refreshments were served. About 50 guests were present.

Mrs. Bessie Cooper, received the news Sunday of the death of her father, Frank Cooper in Chicago last Saturday. Besides his immediate family, he is survived by two brothers, one living in Minnesota and one in Ohio.

A company of relatives and friends assisted Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cooper, residing south of Orland in celebrating their 5th wedding anniversary Thursday evening. A very pleasant evening was spent in playing games and at a later hour refreshments were served. About 30 guests were present.

Mrs. Ben Sayers who has been quite ill the past two weeks is improving slowly.

Stephen Sayers has had a new 5 tube radio installed the past week.

Mokena M. E. Gets Out New Bulletin

Commencing with next Sunday the Mokena M. E. church will issue a weekly church bulletin. This will consist of four pages, two of which are ready printed by the World Service Commission of the M. E. church and contain many highly interesting items of the activities of the church at home and abroad. The remaining two pages contain the names of the church officials of the various departments the name of the pastor, etc., and the hours of service. One page is devoted to the church announcements and news notes of the local church. This coming Sunday being interesting facts concerning the life of the Father of his Country.

Hold Final Rites For Mrs. W. Hentsch

Final rites for Mrs. William Hentsch late of Mokena, were held last Saturday afternoon from the Zion Lutheran church at Tinley Park and were very largely attended. R. v. A. Buddenhagen officiated. Burial took place in the Tinley Park cemetery.

Magdalena Hentsch, nee Baumgartner daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baumgartner of Bachelors Grove, was born in Bremen Township April 19, 1887. On April 19, 1909 she was united in marriage with Wm. Hentsch. Following their marriage they resided near Tinley Park and then moved to Mokena where they have resided since.

The deceased is survived by her husband, eight children, John, Henry, William, Christ, Edward, Helen, Frederick, Frida, her parents, her grandmother and many other relatives and friends. The large circle of friends of Mr. Hentsch deeply sympathize with him and his family in their hour of great bereavement. Mrs. Hentsch underwent an operation at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet on Feb. 4th and died February 11th.

Mokena Needs Parent-Teachers Association

The parents who send children to the Tinley Park public school have the interests of both their children and the teachers at heart to such an extent that they have organized a Parent-Teachers Association. This is an organization that should also exist in Mokena, as it brings the Parents and Teachers in a closer relation and much good is bound to result therefrom as it shows the parents just what work the teachers are doing and what problems they are called on to solve.

Mokena is greatly in need of a like organization and it would be a mighty fine thing for the community if the parents of Mokena would get together and organize such an Association. No doubt the teachers of the Mokena school would welcome such an organization. It is hoped that the time is not so far distant when such will be the case.

The greatest good is bound to accrue to the pupils of any school when both parents and teachers co-operate with one another. The public school is the bulwark of our national life and institutions and it should be the desire of every right minded citizen to foster and support all projects that will make our institutions of learning more efficient.

A teacher cannot solve all the problems which arise between scholar and when the parents are interested in both these things are easily dealt with and both pupil and teacher are benefitted.

Mokena has made much progress in improving the local school within recent years and it is hoped that still further progress will be made along these lines in the near future. Let us hear from our progressive citizens on this matter.

Move to Gary

Mr. and Mrs. R. Harnish who moved to Mokena during the Summer from Chicago and were living with the latter's mother, Mrs. Wiers moved to Gary, Indiana Saturday where Mr. Harnish is employed in the offices of the Illinois Steel Co. at that City.

Parent-Teachers Association Formed at Tinley Park

Under the direction of Mrs. J. P. Postweil, Vice-Regional Director of District 19, Tinley Park organized a Parent-Teachers Association which will soon prove a valuable asset to the community.

Unusual interest was manifested by the ladies present and by taking advantage of membership with the Illinois Council, they will soon be capable of doing worth while things for the school children.

Programs are under preparation which will include many of the speakers available to all Associations in the Council.

The officers elected are: Mrs. Albert Ickstadt, president; Mrs. John Klipper, vice president; Mrs. J. M. Fulton, secretary; Mrs. Edmond Moser, treasurer.

Regular meetings will be held the first Friday of each month at 8:30 p. m. All interested are invited to attend.

Steering Knuckle Breaks; Car Ditched

August Werner of Mokena had a narrow escape from serious injury Monday afternoon when his auto was ditched while he was driving on the Lincoln highway.

Mr. Werner was driving a Star car and was heading toward Mokena and was at a point on the highway where the steering knuckle was used to turn off toward Frankfort when the steering knuckle came apart and Mr. Werner lost control of his car which ran off the highway into an embankment. The left front wheel was broken off and the car took a nose-dive when it hit the embankment turning the hind end about so that the car was facing in the opposite direction from which it had been running. The car was quite badly wrecked, but luckily Mr. Werner got out of the wreck without being hurt.

Ed. Schmidt

Sale Nets $3800

The sale held on the Edward Schmidt farm northeast of Mokena Monday drew a very large crowd and was one of the best sales in this section this winter, totaling $3800. Cows sold up to $90 and over. Horses brought up to $145. One old black team sold for $120.

School Board May Ask for back tuition

The controversy between L. G. Bruder and the Mokena school board regarding the school tuition of $6 per pupil per month which Mr. Bruder declares is excessive, now simmering down to a position where both sides are sitting tight.

The school board is threatening to present bills to Mr. Bruder for three years back tuition which has never been collected by the board and Mr. Bruder declares he is not going to pay it. Mr. Bruder further states he is going to send his two children to some other school than pay the tuition rate the Mokena school board is asking him to pay.

Masquerade At Frankfort Sat.

The Frankfort Night Hawks who have been giving dances at the Frankfort Hall, have disbanded and a new Club, known as the Jolly Boys are taking their place and will conduct a Silver Prize Masquerade on Feb. 21st. This is the last dance before Lent.

Why We Are Out Early-S Day

The reason why The News-Bulletin is appearing early in the week, is because a number of Joliet merchants asked us to issue earlier so we could carry their Dollar Day advertisements. Thursday, Feb. 19th is Dollar Day in Joliet and many bargains are offered which should not be missed by our readers.

Read the ads over carefully in this issue and take advantage of the bargains offered.

Should the Rod Be Spared?

"Should the mother spare the rod and spoil the child?" is the subject of an interesting debate to be staged by the Mokena Home Improvement Club at their monthly meeting on Thursday, Feb. 26th.

It is all too apparent that in the present day the rod is not used and the lack of its use is manifested in the lives of many of our young people who in many instances no doubt would be on better paths if the rod had been applied at the proper time.

He Saw Lincoln

Millis Knickerbocker of Mokena claims the unique distinction of being the only man living in Mokena who actually saw Abraham Lincoln and heard him speak.

Mr. Knickerbocker had the pleasure of seeing the martyred President and hearing him speak during the review of the Union Army in Washington at the close of the Civil war. He was with his Company and was right behind the President on his horse during the review. Mr. Knickerbocker himself over the 50 year mark, can tell many interesting reminiscences of Lincoln and of the Civil war. He is the only living Civil war veteran for many miles around.

John Bettenhausen

Will hold 2nd Sale

John M. Bettenhausen is the only farmer around Tinley Park, and even other neighboring towns, who has to hold two sales in order to dispose of all of his stock and implements. The sale he held on Feb. 10 was very largely attended, but not half of the things offered were sold as the day was not long enough, so Mr. Bettenhausen is going to sell the remainder of his offerings on Friday Feb. 27th.

Tinley Epworth League to give Play

The Epworth League members of the German M. E. church of Tinley Park are going to present a play "Safety First" at the Saenger Hall on Saturday night of this week. An excellent program has been prepared and will be well worth seeing.

Telephone Co. Solves radio trouble

The Bell Telephone Co., is doing its share to help the radio owners to get the full amount of pleasure out of their sets, by installing a new coil which eliminates interference from their central office ringing equipment. Such a coil has been installed at the Mokena office of this company the past week. As many radio fans could not use their radios on account of the interference picked up from the local Telephone office ringing apparatus. No further complaints have been made by the radio fans since this coil has been installed.

TO HOLD BUNCO PARTY

A bunco party for the benefit of St. Mary's Catholic church at Mokena will be held at the John Horace home in Mokena Sat. night.

Liberia Makes Cash Offer For Bruder Farm

The Liberia Colonization project in New Lenox township looks as tho it was going over this spring. The Liberia Land & Development Association who have a number of options on farms in this township are now negotiating for the purchase of the farm of L. G. Bruder located in both New Lenox and Frankfort townships on a cash basis according to Mr. Bruder. It is said the deal may be closed within the next ten days.

Mr. Bruder was approached by this Association sometime ago but their proposition did not appeal to him and he told them he would only sell on a cash basis and from the latest reports it seems as tho his proposition has been taken up by Liberia.

Klan to Hold A Demonstration In Mokena Ev. Church

The Klan are planning to have their first demonstration as outlined on their program in the Mokena St. John Evangelical church on Sunday, March 8th, and an invitation is extended to everyone in the community to attend this first meeting of the circuit of churches in the jurisdiction of the Frankfort Klan.

MYERS

SYNOPSIS.—Nurses in the Southern hospital at Avonmouth are angered by the insolent treatment accorded them by Dr. John Lancaster, head of the institution, and there is a general feeling of unrest, into which Joan Wentworth, probationary nurse, is drawn. Doctor Lancaster is performing a difficult operation, for which he has won fame. Joan, with other nurses, is in attendance. She is upset, through no fault of her own, and makes a trivial blunder at a critical moment. The patient dies and Doctor Lancaster accuses her of clumsiness. She is suspended, the action meaning the end of her hope of a career as a nurse. Without relatives or friends, and desperate, Joan, urged by her landlady, goes to Doctor Lancaster's office to ask him to overlook her blunder and reinstate her. She overhears a violent altercation between Doctor Lancaster and other men she does not see. Joan is struck by the favorable change in the appearance and demeanor of the doctor, recalling that at times in the hospital he has been gentle and thoughtful and at others supercilious and bullying. He tells her he can do nothing for her at the hospital, but offers her a position in a nursing institution in the country, telling her she can be of "great assistance" to him.

"You're a fool! You don't know when you are well off. I tell you, I wash my hands of you. This is final!" Joan could not help but hear. And as she emerged into the passage, all the time hearing the sounds of the quarreling voices, Myers came hurrying past.

He did not see her. He ran to the door, flung it open, and rushed down the steps into the street. As he went along the passage the girl saw him staring right and left; then, as she came out, he saw her and went toward her. She knew that it was she whom he had been seeking.

"What was it Doctor Lancaster was saying to you, Miss Wentworth, before I came in?" he asked in his rasping tone.

Joan stared at him in astonishment. Now she realized that she had mistaken him; he was not a servant, but apparently a member of the doctor's household.

"Will you let me pass, please?" asked Joan, as he blocked the way. "I want to know what the doctor was saying to you," repeated the man doggedly.

"Are you going to refuse me passage?" demanded the girl, flushing with anger.

He stepped aside with a sneer and a mock bow. "O, very well, if that's your attitude," he answered. "I shall find out."

Joan turned swiftly upon him. "I don't know who you are, but I shall complain of you to Doctor Lancaster," she said.

Myers looked at her and sneered and chuckled. Then, without a word, he went back into the doctor's room. And still the voices kept up their quarreling dialogue.

Joan found herself in the street in the twilight, and now the unreality of the absurd interview struck home to her. She tried to puzzle it out. Before she reached the boarding house she thought she had her clue.

That Lancaster, the terror of the nurses, should have been unable to promise immediate reinstatement, his evident good-will, his indecision and illness were explicable only in one way. The man Myers must be a relative, the third man perhaps a nephew. Lancaster had been supporting a worthless pair in idleness, and had turned on them in exasperation. That was the meaning of his look of illness, his preoccupation—the shock of some domestic discovery.

At any rate she was satisfied with some such solution. And she was certain that, if she pleased him with her mysterious mission, her reinstatement would follow. She went home happy, and Mrs. Webb read the news in her face the moment she opened the door. "I knew it, my dear," she exclaimed with pleasure. "I knew that you could twist that old devil round your finger if you tried hard enough."

"Mrs. Webb, it was nothing of the kind," said Joan. "And Doctor Lancaster is one of the kindest of men. He's going to try to have his decision reversed, and—Mrs. Webb, he is sending me to a sanitarium, on a case, in the meantime."

She checked herself, suddenly remembering Lancaster's caution. But Mrs. Webb took the girl to her wide bosom and kissed her.

"You little humbug!" she said. "Mrs. Webb," cried Joan, scandalized, "if you knew—"

But when she was upstairs she sat down suddenly and faced her conscience. What impression of herself had she given in the consulting room?

She did not know. This scene, like that of the morning, had become blurred in her memory, and time had begun to flow very fast after the slowness of her twenty-two years. Certainly stranger things had happened that day than at any time since her mother's death!

She leaned out of the window. She suddenly remembered that the institute was not many miles from her old home. It would be almost going home—and on the morrow. Joy leaped into her heart.

Then she saw something that for an instant chilled the blood in her veins. Across the street, leaning against the park railings and looking up at the house, was a short, square-built figure of a man wearing a hard hat. She could not distinguish the face, but she thought it was Myers. And she remembered his threat.

What did it mean? Bewildered, she turned into her room again. She half regretted now that she was to go to Lancaster.

But in the morning she dismissed the incident from her mind as a fantasy.

Chapter IV

At half-past seven in the evening Joan descended from the train at Lancaster station, after an all-day ride.

It was, like going home. Joan could not see her village, which was on a branch line, but at Medlington she was only four miles away. There were the same misty mountains, breaking the horizon line, the same small, straggling towns, the same fragrance of the deep forests, bringing back to her those remembrances which a chance odor suddenly unlooses, as at the touch of some magician's staff. The two years that she had spent at Avonmouth seemed to slip out of her recollection.

As the afternoon flew by the distant mountains changed into a semicircle of irregular heights. Now the train was climbing into the foothills. It was a lonely land. This was further in the back country than Joan had ever been. The villages were becoming mere clusters of negro cabins. There had been two changes of trains and each time the coach became shabbier and more disreputable, and more impregnated with tobacco smoke. The character of Joan's fellow travelers changed as well. They were uncouth, they wore chin beards and rough store suits; they sat perspiring and collarless, the soft hats pulled over their foreheads. But she looked at them with the loving appreciation of her own people that was in her heart, and they, in the presence of the pretty girl who was traveling alone, displayed the innate courtesy of the Southerner.

The sun descended; it was gilding the whole land with level rays of gold and dancing on the horizon like a red ball when the train pulled into Lancaster, the last station before Millville, the terminus. Joan got down and looked about her.

The station was a tiny place and seemed deserted. The booking office was closed. In the waiting room, appearing almost to fill it, was a stout negress with a dozen parcels; from the wicker sides of one two hens' heads with blinking eyes protruded. Outside a ramshackle buggy, with a lean chestnut horse attached, was drawn up to the edge of the muddy road.

A well-dressed young mountain boy in a hard-felt hat was standing beside it. As Joan came out of the station he turned toward her, took off his hat, and bowed.

"Miss Wentworth?" he inquired, in a well-bred tone.

"Yes. You are from the institute?"

"Yes, Miss Wentworth. Mrs. Fraser will be expecting you." He looked beyond her, and Joan, turning, perceived to her discomfort the man Myers, in his hard hat. He must have traveled up in the train with her.

Myers came forward, taking off his hat grudgingly. "Miss Wentworth, I'm sorry if I annoyed you last night," he said. "I ought to have explained to you that I'm the secretary of the institution. I guess my manners ain't very good, but I meant no harm."

Joan, who had witnessed his presence with consternation, now felt a sudden reaction from her fears. Of course, Myers' explanation made the situation intelligible.

She bowed, and he turned to the boy. "You can take Miss Wentworth up," he said. "I'll find a buggy somewhere."

As there was only room for two in the buggy, Joan did not demur to the proposition. She stepped in, the young man holding out his hand to guard her dress from the wheel. Joan glanced at the man with momentary interest. He had the appearance of a gentleman, and the manners of one. There was no hint of either servility or presumption, and yet there was a sort of independence about the man which fitted him admirably. He flicked the horse, and the buggy began to crawl out of the station yard along the single street of a tiny village, straggling uphill. It was a white village, but clusters of shanties a little back among the pines betrayed the presence of the black element. There was a store or two, their fronts plastered with tobacco and baking powder advertisements, and in front of each stood a gaunt, yellow-faced hillman, chewing and gazing after the buggy with unanimated face.

"This is Lancaster?" asked Joan.

"Yes, Miss Wentworth."

"The people here look depressed."

"There's a good deal of sickness, Miss Wentworth. Hookworm, and what they used to call malaria. But there isn't any malaria here; it's bad diet—salt pork and soda biscuits. And there's pellagra; it's been here for generations, but it wasn't till last year that the medical commission discovered it."

The coachman's knowledge might have been ludicrous in most men of his class, but there was nothing ridiculous in the grave, refined face of the young mountaineer. He must have picked up some knowledge at the institute, thought Joan.

"But it's healthy up in the hills, Miss Wentworth," he added. "This village is Millville. They used to grow cotton in the valley over yonder, but the frost killed the crops three years ago, and the mill fell into ruin. Quite a little water power in that stream."

The buggy ascended a steeper grade, the horse breaking into a short gallop near every summit, and then resuming its leisurely crawl.

"That's the institute, Miss Wentworth," the coachman continued, pointing toward a straggling building on a little plateau. It had the appearance of a large but rather dilapidated farmhouse. "It's three miles by the road," he added, "but less than a mile over the hills."

The horse had stopped to gain breath again. Looking back, Joan saw a white line that crept upward over the rocky slopes almost direct from the station to the building. Half way up was a little speck of black that seemed to move. Joan knew it was Myers' hard hat, his body being hidden from view among the bushes. She shuddered slightly; the man was very repugnant to her.

The horse went on again, the road winding uphill through pastures gay with buttercups and white with little branched asters. It dipped between hedgerows pink with meadow-sweet. The sun had set, but its light still gilded the hills. The scene was very peaceful. Now the institute seemed to swing out from among the undulations of the mountain flanks immediately in front of them.

The buggy came to a standstill before the long wooden building, which was of unshingled boards and very much the worse for weather. It had not been painted for years, and two windows in one wing were broken. A patch of weedy, unimproved lawn extended between what had once been hedges, but were now mere tangles of undergrowth. Nearby was a large inclosure in which were a few chickens, pecking for grains of corn, and a cow at pasture turned her head and gazed at them placidly.

The door opened and a pleasant-looking woman came forward.

"How do you do, Miss Wentworth," she said. "I am the matron, Mrs. Fraser. Doctor Lancaster telegraphed about your coming. I'll show you your room, and your supper will be ready in a few minutes."

Joan descended. The driver, who had leaped to the ground, held his hand over the wheel, but did not offer it to her. Then he re-entered the buggy, and, rather to Joan's surprise, drove off along the road by which they had ascended.

The mystery deepens, with Myers the secretary of the institution. Is Joan in for a disagreeable adventure?

Lesson for February 22

GOOD CITIZENSHIP
(Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT.—Rom. 13:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Rom. 13:9.
PRIMARY TOPIC.—Love One Another.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—Rewards of Obedience.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—Obeying the law.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Obeying and Enforcing the Law.

It is highly important that the disciple of Christ should realize that he is a citizen as well as a Christian. Intelligent Christians will show loyalty to the state as well as to the church. In fact, the better the Christian, the better the state. The failure to recognize this truth has brought Christianity into disrepute in many quarters.

1. The Christian's Obligation to the State (vv. 1-7).

1. Obedience to the Rulers (vv. 1-4). This obligation is upon all Christians. The reason this obligation is universal is that civil government is ordained of God and the rulers are His representatives. It is God's purpose that man should live under authority. It is His purpose because man's highest good demands it. To refuse obedience to civil authority is to resist God. This of course does not mean that a Christian at the behest of the state should do that which is morally wrong, just as parental authority does not imply that the child is under obligation to do that which is morally wrong at the command of parents, but it does demand submission as the law of the believer's life. The Christian frequently has need to call upon the rulers for help and personal protection (Acts 18:12-17; 19:35-41; 22:25).

2. The Spirit of Such Obedience (v. 5). It is to be conscientious, that is, it is to be regarded, not merely as serving a good purpose, but morally right.

3. The Nature of This Obedience (vv. 6-7).

(1) Payment of personal and property taxes. The citizens who enjoy the benefits of government are morally bound to support it.

(2) Payment of duties upon merchandise and license fees. The business exchange between nations must be regulated. For such regulations expenses incur for which benefits the citizens should pay.

(3) Veneration for magistrates—"fear to whom fear." Those who fear God should venerate His representatives, that is, civil rulers.

(4) The proper attitude—"honor to whom honor." This means that civil servants, officers of the law, should be honored because of the ministry they perform.

II. The Christian's Obligation to His Fellow Citizens (vv. 8-10).

This is summed up in the word "love." Love is a perpetual obligation. Paying of debts is obligatory upon all. Christians are judged by their promptness in paying debts. The only debt that is right to owe is that of love. Although we give love to the full each day, each succeeding day calls for it over again. Love works no ill to one's neighbor. This love forbids defrauding in matters of property; it forbids going into debt where there is no reasonable certainty of being able to meet the obligation; it forbids defrauding in matters of moral purity. Where there is real love, adultery cannot be committed, for it is a crime against one's neighbor. Love forbids murder. It forbids stealing. It forbids coveting. It forbids working ill to one's neighbor.

III. The Grand Incentive of the Christian's Life (vv. 11-14).

This is the coming of the Lord. The supreme call is to the Christian to awake out of sleep. The picture here presented is of one asleep when the sun is high in the heavens. Life's duties can only be properly executed when one is awake. The one going through life without thinking of eternity is asleep. Each day is bringing us nearer to the eternal goal and since that day is at hand, we should

1. Cast Off the Works of Darkness (v. 12). The works of darkness are the sins of the flesh such as dishonest dealing in business, rioting and drunkenness.

2. Put on the Armor of Light (vv. 12-13). With this armor on the Christian will (1) walk honestly, (2) not in rioting and drunkenness, (3) not in chambering and wantonness, (4) not in strife, (5) not in envying.

3. Put on the Lord Jesus Christ (v. 14). The only way to be free from the works of darkness is to put on Christ.

New Electricity Idea

A submarine cable in one continuous length of 2,700 feet has been recently laid across the Hudson river at Garrison, just below West Point, according to the Electrical World. The makeup of the cable and the method of laying it presented some features not encountered in everyday practice. The cable is to carry current from the east side of the river to the west side for local distribution in the immediate vicinity of Garrison. Power is to be transmitted at first at 2,300 volts with ungrounded star-connected transformers, and this will later be changed to 4,000 volts with the neutral grounded.

There was an epidemic of smallpox in the town in a western state; the edict had gone forth that all must be vaccinated.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Lacks the Greatest Joys of Life

Many Wives are Childless Because of Ill Health. Read How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Mrs. Benedict

MRS. MARY R. BENEDICT
813 PAYSON STREET, KEWANE, ILLINOIS
Kewanee, Illinois. — "When I was married about a year and a half I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because of ill health. I did not have any children. I now have two healthy little girls and I am sure I would not have had them had it not been for your medicine. Last spring and summer I got all run down, irregular, and I had awful headaches, and my back and side hurt me so that I could stay up only a short time. My limbs would get so tired and ache till I could cry. I started to take the Vegetable Compound again and used the Sanative Wash, and it was not long till I was relieved. Now I do all my own work and help others. I sure praise Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines to any one I meet that is suffering from similar troubles. I think if mothers with girls would give it to them when they come to womanhood it would make them stronger. People who have known me all my life are astonished to see me now as I was always sickly when in my teens until I started taking the Vegetable Compound."—MRS. MARY R. BENEDICT, 813 Payson Street, Kewanee, Ill.

Has a Beautiful Baby Girl Now

Bridport, Vermont. — "In the first place I wanted a baby, but none seemed to come to me. I just love children and my husband is away all day, so I was not happy at all. A doctor told me I could not have a baby until I went to a hospital. But my sisters said, 'Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you will be O.K.' I was nervous, had organic weakness, with backache, sideache, headache and no strength. I had been in bed nearly a week when I began taking the Vegetable Compound. It was all that ever helped me and I just wish you could see my beautiful baby girl. I am fine now, and so is she. I am still taking the medicine as it keeps me well. You may be sure I am recommending the Vegetable Compound and always will."—MRS. A. W. HOWE, Bridport, Vermont.

Human Ashes Weigh Little

Cremation is rapidly becoming a burial custom with many families who, a decade ago, were prejudiced against it. In the larger cities this is especially true. The ashes of a human body weigh about two pounds and a container equal in size to a two-quart measure is usually necessary to preserve the remains.

The McIntosh Real Estate Company of Chicago have also taken a hand in the tuition controversy and wrote to Mayor George J. Hacker protesting against the rate of $6 per month per pupil for tuition. It is understood that Mayor Hacker has outlined the controversy in a reply to the McIntosh company.

Mr. Bruder has contended that the Marti school district north of Mokena which has kept its school closed for the past three years should be consolidated with the Mokena village school district so that the school taxes from that district could be paid into this district and his contention is upheld by Assessor Joseph Kohl of Frankfort township who declares that as this Marti district school has been closed for three years, the school taxes of that district according to law should go to the Mokena school district. The tax rate in the Mokena school district is $2.09 and in the Marti district is 77c. In the Frankfort village school district the school tax rate is $2.08.

The matter of getting the Marti school district tax is up to the township school trustees.

In addition to showing the best specimens of leading growers, the Chicago Show will also display representative ears from thousands of corncribs. This is the Radiola IIIA a four tube set, operated with dry cell batteries. It comes complete with a Radiola Loud Speaker, Head Phones and four Radiotron tubes. This set in the mahogany cabinets with built in Loud Speaker, space for batteries and installed complete for $112, is a real bargain, and it will give you plenty of long distance over the Loud Speaker.

Recently I received a letter from Miss Agnes White, Route No. 5, Lockport, Ill., who purchased one of these sets last spring, and she enclosed a list of 68 stations she had received. It completely covered the United States and a large part of Canada. This set being a Radiola, also works whenever you turn it on.

Any Radiola can be purchased on the time payment plan of 25 per cent down, plus interest when set is delivered and the balance in ten equal monthly payments.

If you are interested in Radio don't hesitate for a demonstration. It will not obligate you in anyway.

WARDS OF ILLINOIS GIVEN EXCELLENT CARE

Management of State Hospitals Has Not Been Criticized in Past
Four Years.

For each 100,000 persons in the state of Illinois, 303 are in the state hospitals for insane, maintained by the state, according to a recently completed report of the department of public welfare.

It is estimated there are 450 persons afflicted with nervous or mental diseases out of each 100,000 population in the United States.

The population of the Illinois hospitals for mental and nervous diseases on June 30 last, was 19,456. During this year the total number discharged as recovered or greatly improved was 4,064 which is the largest number discharged during any one year in the history of the department of public welfare.

In the year 1923 there was a decrease in accidental deaths and suicides in the state hospitals of almost 50 per cent as compared with 1920.

More attention has been paid during the present administration to occupational therapy and during the last year 7,565 insane patients were employed in hospital industries, an increase of 2,280 over the year ending June 30, 1922, in these same classes. The total estimated value of articles manufactured by patients in the industrial classes during the year was $131,119.75.

The report discloses 5,000 children have been placed in homes by the division of visitation of children, a branch of the department of public welfare.

This work has been carried on under Governor Small for nearly four years—caring for 19,456 people mentally sick, and 5,000 children in foster homes—without a word of criticism from any quarter.

New Way to Quickly Stop Worst Cough

A remarkable new and simple method for treating a cough gives relief with the first dose and usually breaks a severe cough in 24 hours.

The treatment is based on the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. People have been astonished how quickly the coughing stopped with this new treatment, and the whole cough condition goes in a very short time.

The prescription is for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. It is excellent for children as well as grownups—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for Back Bad Since the Grip?

Has a cold or grip sapped your strength? Do you suffer constant backache, feel nervous and depressed? Then look to your kidneys! Many cases of kidney trouble are the result of infectious disease. The kidneys often break down under the strain of filtering disease-created poisons from the blood. That's why a cold or grip often leaves backache, headaches, dizzy spells and irregular kidney action. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Illinois Case

Mrs. James Rasmussen, 916 Eighth St., Rockford, Ill., says: "The dull, bearing down pains across my back had me in a tired condition. I was often dizzy and spots danced before my eyes, blurring my sight. My kidneys were disordered. I used a box of Doan's Pills and they soon rid me of the lame back and made me feel like my old self."

BOMBING TEST FACTS HUSHED

Flyer Says Admiral Edited Statement—"Feared Ruin of Navy."

Washington.—Rear Admiral William R. Shoemaker of the navy's bureau of operations was charged before the house aircraft investigating committee with suppressing facts on the bombing of the U. S. S. Virginia by army airmen.

W. C. Shaffner, Jr., lieutenant colonel of the Army Air Service Reserve corps, in making this charge, told the committee that when the original report of the test was submitted to Admiral Shoemaker, that officer exclaimed: "It's true, every bit of it, but we can't let this get out or it would ruin the navy."

The recounting of the incident, which occurred during the bombing experiments off Cape Hatteras about two years ago, was presented by Colonel Shaffner in the form of a letter he had sent February 6 to the house military affairs committee, but which was not made public by that body.

"After the Virginia had been sunk, within a few minutes after being struck by heavy bombs dropped from the airplanes flown by army pilots, Mr. Gardner of the Aviation Magazine wrote a statement to be issued by General Pershing concerning this bombing," said the letter as read to the investigating committee.

Mr. Gardner, it was declared, submitted this statement first to General Patrick for his O. K. The statement was read over very carefully by General Patrick and O. K'd by him. Then it was submitted to General Pershing, who stated that if the navy would O. K. it he would issue the statement over his signature.

"I happened to be sitting on the upper deck on a life-preserver box in civilian clothes when this statement was brought to Admiral Shoemaker by a junior officer of the navy construction corps, and I happened to overhear the following conversation, which I will give to you as nearly as possible, after such a long lapse of time.

"Junior Officer: 'Sir, here is a statement written by Mr. Gardner of the Aviation Magazine. O. K'd by the navy for General Pershing's signature. I would like to have you read it over and see what you think of it.'

"Admiral Shoemaker read the statement and exclaimed: 'It's true, every bit of it, but we can't let this get out or it would ruin the navy. We will have to change this some, and see if it can be put out under the general's signature the way we want it.'

"During the next fifteen minutes Admiral Shoemaker and his junior officer went over this statement, word by word, blue penciled whole lines and paragraphs, and changed the wording so that upon completion of their job there was absolutely no resemblance to the original statement written by Mr. Gardner."

Admiral Shoemaker branded Colonel Shaffner's story as "ridiculous," and announced he will ask to go before the committee.

Flames Sweep Auto Show; Loss Put at $2,250,000

Kansas City, Mo.—Fire destroyed approximately $1,500,000 worth of the latest creations of automobile manufacturers at the Kansas City motor show in the American Royal Live Stock pavilion here.

The pavilion, valued at $750,000, was declared a total loss by firemen one hour and a half after the fire was discovered in the annex of the main building. This brought the total loss to $2,250,000.

Gasoline tanks on the motor cars on display exploded and added to the intensity of the flames.

Firemen expressed the belief that the origin of the fire was due to defective wiring through the flimsy decorations.

Three hundred passenger cars, representing fifty manufacturers, were on display, in addition to 100 motor trucks and 20 motor busses. There were 250 accessories booths. The exhibits also included two airplanes and a motor boat.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Editor of "HEALTH"

IDIOSYNCRASY

IDIOSYNCRASY. This is a long word. What does it mean? It stands for something which we know exists but no one knows what it is.

A familiar proverb which goes back to the old Greek writers is that "One man's meat is another man's poison." This is a terse way of saying that a food which will agree with and nourish one person will produce injurious effects on another. The food is just the same in both instances, so the difference must be in the individuals.

What is the difference? No one knows. Yet strawberries, which most people enjoy, will cause nausea and vomiting and a severe rash in some cases. I recall a patient who could not eat lobster. Her friends knew it and never offered it to her. Taking lunch at a hotel with friends, a salad was ordered which contained a small amount of lobster meat, although this was not known to any of the party. Inside of ten minutes after eating the salad, this lady was taken violently ill. By the time she could be taken to a room and undressed, her body was covered from head to foot with a vivid scarlet eruption. The other members of the party, who ate exactly the same salad, showed no symptoms at all.

Certain drugs produce unusual effects on some people. Others are unpleasantly affected by the odors of certain flowers or the presence of certain animals.

At a recent meeting of German scientists, Professor Dorr of Basel discussed this subject, which has become one of practical importance on account of the different way in which individuals are affected by animal serums.

It has been found that the various individual forms of sensitiveness possess the same peculiarities. A person who is unusually sensitive to one material is sensitive to that material alone; that is, a person who cannot eat lobster can eat oysters and fish with immunity. A person who is sensitive to strawberries can eat apples, grapes, plums or pears without any discomfort. Another peculiarity is that the symptoms caused in a sensitive person have nothing whatever to do with the effects that the same substance produces in normal individuals. The third peculiarity is that symptoms produced by any of these objects in any individual who is sensitive to them are all alike. This is also true of animal serums. Probably hay fever is the best-known example of such sensitiveness.

No one knows why certain persons are sensitive to certain objects.

Not knowing the cause, however, has not prevented scientific men from giving these peculiar conditions a name nearly as long as the old one. Cases of idiosyncrasy are now said to be caused by anaphylaxis. This does not increase our knowledge, but it gives us one long word to take the place of another.

EYESIGHT VARIES WITH AGE

WHEN are your eyes the best? At what age does the average person see clearest? The United States public health service has endeavored to answer this question by a careful examination of the eyes of ten thousand persons. Half of them were school boys from six to sixteen and half of them were working men from eighteen up. The boys were public school pupils in South Carolina, Maryland, Delaware and New York and the workmen were employees in post offices, in glass, pottery, foundry, steel, chemical, cigar, gas and cement industries in various parts of the United States.

This number is large enough to include every variety of sight defect. What were the results of this large number of examinations?

The public health experts found that the percentage (that is, the number out of every one hundred persons examined) of persons with normal vision increased with age from six years up to eighteen years, after which it declined and that the rate of decline was much more rapid after forty-five than before.

This would indicate that in children with good eyesight, school work was not as hard a strain on the eyes as different forms of work taken up after leaving school.

The investigation also showed that if the eyes were markedly defective, school work still further weakened them and that the percentage of persons with markedly defective vision increased steadily after six years of age. The rate of increase was more rapid during school age than in the early years of industrial work.

The percentage of persons with moderately defective vision decreased during the school ages, then increased from twenty to fifty and then declined again.

The general conclusion from these facts would seem to be that if one has good eyes, school work improves the vision but that, in persons with poor eyesight, school work is harder than industrial work, probably because persons having very poor eyes naturally select work which does not require acute vision. In any case, the eyesight is best at about eighteen years.

Deer Liked Comfort

A young deer of Mount Rainier park knows a comfortable bed when it sees it. Last summer the guests at Paradise inn were startled to see a deer enter the great front door of the hotel and, walking up to the fountain in the lobby, take a drink and then got out. After that the animal remained in the hotel grounds and allowed people to pet it at will. As a fawn the same deer had frequented the grounds the summer before. A few weeks after it had drunk from the fountain an employee entered one of the guest tents to make the bed and found the deer lying comfortably on top of it.—Youth's Companion.

Giving the Dairy Cow a Square Deal

News Bureau of Animal Husbandry

There are now 25,375,000 dairy cattle in the United States. Of these, says a recent report, only about one-half are cared for in a manner to enable them to return a fair profit to their owners.

Many a milk cow has been accused of being a "boarder" when the owner had only himself to blame. Unlike human beings, dairy cows never shirk intentionally, and frequent tests reveal that seemingly unimportant details in the care of milk cows have startling effects on milk production.

If you are considering drying up any of your milk herd because you believe them to be unproductive, fill in the questionnaire below for your own satisfaction. If you can write YES as an answer to all of the questions, it is safe to assume that, if your cows are not diseased, they are getting a square deal and therefore ought to repay you generously.

Are you feeding them a properly balanced ration?

If not, or if you are not quite sure of what makes up a properly balanced ration for milk cows, get in touch with your county agent. It will pay you to do this.

Are the stables kept clean—especially during the months you keep the milk cows in?

Clean stables and good ventilation are essential if the cow is to give full returns. Clean gutters, clean bedding and lots of pure air are important.

Has your milk herd access to all the fresh water they will drink? If not, give it to them. Water is cheap, and they will repay you with more and better milk.

Do you keep the cows clean? Filth adhering to flanks and udders takes money right out of your pocket. Impurities are absorbed into the system. That means more feed or less milk. Milk from a manure-caked cow is unclean and, on a strict interpretation, against the law. In just a few minutes, you can clip the udders, flanks and underlines of the cows. Thereafter, it is only a matter of seconds to wipe off all clinging foreign matter with a damp cloth. Farmers and dairymen who follow this practice say it increases milk flow and enriches the milk. And the cow is certainly more comfortable and contented.

Are you giving your cows a square deal?

Be Sure and see the play

Pine Tar and Honey Best
All-Modern Drugs

In thousands of families it has been the custom for many years to keep pine tar and honey always on hand for coughs, chest colds, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, and throat irritations. Our mothers knew that it was good, that it often broke up the worst cough in 24 hours, and that it could be given to young and old alike, as it contains no narcotics or harmful drugs.

And now we are told that in spite of modern medical discoveries there is still no better or quicker cough remedy. Doctors say the pine tar quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion that cause the coughing, also healing soreness, while the honey not only gives a pleasant taste, but helps soothe irritation.

The original compound, made up many years ago and used by millions of people, was Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. This is scientifically composed of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other quick-acting, healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to aid in quick relief. If you want the original and the best, be sure you get Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey and no other. Only 30c. at any good druggists.
